P. R. MILNES

The opinions expressed in this column are the personal views of the writer and do not necessarily reflect those of the management; in fact, many times they do not.

AS PREDICTED
The vacant judgeship has been filled, as predicted in the news columns of this paper yesterday morning and A. F. Bray of Martinez is the man on whom the mantle of the late Judge A. B. McKenzie has fallen.

Mr. Bray has just reason to be proud over the honor conferred upon him, as it is a position that carries with it a great deal of prestige and gives the holder an enviable position in the county. The only drawback is, that filling an unexpired term, he will be forced next year to go through the throes and expense of an election if he desires to retain the seat.

"MANY CALLED"
The appointment is an exemplification of the old saying that "many are called but few are chosen." The other disappointed aspirants will naturally conceal their feelings and extend congratulations. The meats at the feast, however, will be of the funeral variety and there will be no real jubilation in the tents of Israel.

Already there is talk among the vanquished of polishing up their armor for the fray, which betokens the fact that the election next year will not be entirely devoid of excitement and interest.

WHY THOSE TEARS?
There is a superabundance of weeping and maudlin sympathy being wasted over Congress these days in certain quarters. Crying towels are much in evidence because our national lawmakers are forced to stay in Washington during the hot spell and be subjected to the discomforts of the torrid atmosphere prevalent there.

While there seems to be no controversy over the proposition that the prolonged session is keeping things in an uproar throughout the nation and in reality seriously retarding recovery, many are still crying.

Lucas refused to say how many votes Lindbergh had received or to release any other statistics on the poll. He said the result would be announced when all the votes are in.

SOAK RICH MEASURE IS UNDER QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—UP—Democratic leaders today killed all chance of passing a soldier bonus bill this session of Congress, and thereby blasted the biggest obstacle to early Senate approval of the Roosevelt tax measure.

Advocates of immediate payment of the bonus were planning to attach their proposal in amendment to the tax bill. Such action would have caused long and heated debate.

BONUS IN JANUARY

The Democratic steering committee took cognizance of this threat at a meeting today. Its members are a small group of Senators, headed by Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson, who maps the policy of the majority. What they arrived at was a compromise.

In return for abandoning the fight for this session of Congress, the veterans bloc will be assigned a definite day in the next Congress—sometimes in January—in which to bring up a bonus bill.

BONUS BLOC SATISFIED

Most members of the bonus bloc seemed satisfied. Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma was not. He said the fight would continue. In reply, Robinson announced that if the veterans bloc insisted on trying to attach their plan to the tax bill he had been authorized by the steering committee to move to table the bonus.

ETHIOPIA IS SOAK RICH PREPARING MEASURE IS FOR ATTACK UNDER QUIZ

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 6.—UP.—“We expect Italy to attack within a month and we are ready,” Emperor Haile Selassie said in an exclusive interview today.

The emperor received the United Press correspondent in his dark, simply furnished, rug-lined study. A simple man, with the fingers of an artist and the face of a zealot, the emperor asserted that if war comes after he has exhausted every effort for peace he will lead his troops into battle himself.

MEN AT DRILL

Men drilled in the distance outside the impressive, grey-stone imperial palace as the conquering Lion of Judah, discarding his field marshal's uniform for a turban and flowing robe, pondered the plight of his people and then gave earnest, straight-forward answers to the questions of an American reporter here to record Ethiopia's fight for liberty.

Discussing his almost fanatical stand for Ethiopian freedom, the emperor was asked about the report of project for an international mandate by the League of Nations over Ethiopia.

The League on many occasions has rendered valuable economic and social aid to its members without restricting their independence in any respect,” he answered. “We would not refuse such assistance.”

NO JAPANESE HELP

Asked if he had received assurance of Japanese support, he replied, in the soft, Amharic language of Ethiopian officialdom, “none.”

His features were almost indistinguishable as he sat with his back to the room's only window. Light fell full on the correspondent but the King of Kings of Ethiopia, the elect of God, sat in shadows suggestive of the dark clouds hovering over his country's frontiers.

“Will you lead your troops in event of war with Italy?” he was asked.

TO LEAD TROOPS

“Ethiopian tradition and the constitution we gave our people require the emperor to be commander-in-chief of the army,” he said with full consciousness of his imperial position. “We neither intend nor desire to avoid performance of any part of our sacred task—the defense of our liberty and our territory.”

The emperor then became a soldier for a few minutes.

He refused to reveal the number of men available to fight under his standards. “No military information can be disclosed.”

Inquiry regarding the arms embargo drew the sharp comment:

By the irony of circumstances the embargo hampers the only country which from the first has devoted all efforts to securing a peaceful settlement. We have not yet sought to purchase anything for which we are unable to pay. We have no intention of departing from this policy.”

COUNSEL TESTIFIES

He was Robert H. Jackson, counsel of the Internal Revenue

Bureau. The bright young man who hales such rumors of immorality makes them explain their income tax returns. Jackson talked for two hours today and was told to come back tomorrow and talk some more.

The burden of his argument was that taxes bear down too heavily on the poor and too lightly on the rich. Out of his brief case he dug figures showing that the odds are about 11 to 1 against an American earning more than $5,000 a year. The odds are 19 to 1 against reaching an income of $10,000 a year.

If you slip up somewhere in making out your income tax returns, Jackson and his assistants are the men who are likely to catch you. He talked about that, too.

TELLS STOCK TRANSFERS

“We are successful,” he said,

“in dealing with minor evaders, but the tax evasion schemes of rich men sometimes come to light only accidentally. They present the utmost difficulty of solution in the face of a general conspiracies of their associated and controlled corporations to suppress information.

“Let me explain what I mean by telling you about a man we are investigating now. He had $100,000 worth of securities. When it came time to pay his income tax, he sold those securities to his secretary—a girl earning $20 a week—for $50. Then he deducted the loss on that transaction from his income. The girl never knew about it, never knew she had bought the securities. As soon as his income tax was filed,

he bought the securities back from her.”

Demos Split On Guffey Measure

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—UP.—

Virtually the only major measure left for the House to act on this session—the Guffey bill setting up a code for the coal industry—was bound in deadlock tonight.

Democrats of the House ways and means committee were reported split 9 to 7 over a favorable report on the bill. The minority, it was understood refused to abide by the unit rule, which would require them to vote with the majority against the seven Republicans.

The Guffey bill has been the subject of controversy ever since it was introduced.

VIOLATION OF SHERMAN LAW IS CHARGED

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6.—UP.—A petition for a temporary injunction seeking to restrain three major motion picture distributors from alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act was filed here today in federal court.

The companies named were Warner Brothers-First National, RKO Radio and Paramount Pictures and their affiliates and officers.

CHARGE TRADE RESTRAINT

The petition asked that the producers show cause August 19, why an injunction should not be issued, and charged that the companies had been acting in restraint of trade.

Government attorneys announced the object of the injunction was to prevent the film companies from entering into new contracts with St. Louis exhibitors until the courts have ruled on the government's suit.

INDICTMENTS PENDING

The anti-trust case, filed last January on findings of a Federal grand jury, has been set for hearing September 29.

Individuals named in the original suit included Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, Fleischer, president of First National, Ned E. Dipinet, president of the RKO Distributing Corporation, and George J. Schaeffer, president of three Paramount firms.

The indictments were returned on the complaint of Allen L. Snyder, St. Louis exhibitor, who said that he was unable to obtain desired features. The indictments charged that three theaters operated by Snyder were unable to obtain suitable films after August, 1934. Two of Snyder's houses have since been closed.

Snyder's complaint alleged that the movie companies operated under a "gentleman's agreement."

The suit further charged that the defendants conspired to corner large amounts of outstanding bonds of Snyder's three theaters, and use them as a threat to prevent anyone but Warner Brothers or its affiliates from exhibiting.

The building owners, it is threatened with "great loss, injury and damage" if anyone other than Warner Bros. operated the theaters and less as were warned that their "business, trade, reputation and property" would be harmed if they should attempt to operate, the indictment charged.

Youth Missing Many Months Is Found, A Suicide

SANTA ROSA, Aug. 6.—UP.—For the first time in several months Joseph Morrison, poultry rancher, visited his abandoned chicken house on his ranch near Petaluma today.

As he entered, he saw the body of his nephew, John M. Gray, 26, hanging from a rafter. Gray had been missing since February 7.

Morrison told authorities that Gray had withdrawn $50 from a local bank last February, saying he intended to return to his home in the east. Morrison said he wrote relatives when he heard nothing from Gray and was informed that Gray had not arrived at his supposed destination.

Morrison said his nephew's mother died a few weeks prior to February 7 and suggested despondence as a suicide motive. He said Gray had been unemployed.

Morticians here said the condition of Gray's body indicated he had been dead several months. Police are investigating.

GIANTS' LEAD IS CUT WHEN DODGERS WIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—UP—The New York Giants lost a full game of their National League lead and had their margin over the Chicago Cubs cut to three games today.

While the Brooklyn Dodgers were defeating the Giants 3-1, the second place Chicago Cubs capitalized with a 2-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Giants hit in every inning except one, but old Tom Zachary, pitching more with his head than his arm, kept the New Yorkers' hits well scattered.

Tony Cuccinello put the Dodgers in front with a homer in the second. Singles by him, Lopez and Hoyle added a tally in the fifth, and singles by Boyle and Stripp, plus an infield out, accounted for the third tally in the eighth.

The Cubs made only four hits off Ralph Binkofer whose error in the third contributed to his downfall. Jurgens beat out a slow roller. Hershaw popped to Binkofer, who dropped the ball and then threw wild to first. Suhr recovered the ball but threw it wild into left field. A sacrifice and Herman's long fly drove Hershaw home with the winning run.

The Boston Braves, behind Bob Smith's three-hit pitching, defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0. Smith sent the first 22 men to reach him down in one-two-three order, not a man reaching first.

Canilli and Todd spoiled the day for him with singles in the eighth and Allen added another in the ninth.

Dizzy Dean's home run with two mates on base gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in 10 innings. He came into the game in the seventh inning with the score tied, 3-3, and received credit for his 18th victory. Bill Delancey also hit a homer for the Cards. Walker, Haines and Dean permitted the Reds only six hits. St. Louis made 11 hits off Freitas and Johnson.

In the only American League game, the Washington Senators defeated Philadelphia's Athletics 11-2. Nine Washington hits coupled with three Philadelphia errors gave the Senators five runs in each of the first two innings. Buddy Myer of Washington was the batting star with four singles in five trips to the plate.

Double Bill At The Fox Today

"Orchids to You" a sizzling story of romance and hilarity with John Boles, Jean Muir, and Charles Butterworth starred will come to the Fox theater today at the head of a new double program. "Right Back" starring Ann Sothern, Ralph Bellamy and John Buckler is the added feature attraction.

away, a strange man made an attempt to seize me while I was playing. I managed to evade him, however, and ran into the house."

It was a few days later, after her mother hastened back to her, that police released the information that nearly 30 girls all between the ages of 8 and 12 and all blondes had disappeared from that territory.

"We were terribly frightened," Miss Louise continued. "We left Lorraine as quickly as possible, proceeding to Vienna, where mother had been successful in getting me a part in a picture."

"But Vienna proved no safer than Lorraine."

Upon our arrival there, we drove from the station to the hotel. As we stepped from our taxi, mother turned to pay the driver.

"Just at that moment a man suddenly lifted me in his arms and started to run down the street. I screamed and mother screamed."

"The manager of the hotel, who was coming down the stairs, gave chase and the kidnaper dropped me and leaped into a waiting automobile, disappearing around the corner."

For the remainder of her stay in Vienna, Miss Louise was guarded day and night. Completing the picture, they entrained for Italy.

"On the train, however," she said "there was a man of whom we were instinctively afraid. When it became necessary for mother to leave me alone for a moment, she appealed to a Japanese couple who occupied an adjoining compartment."

"Mother had no more than got out of sight when the man opened the door. The Japanese gentleman jumped up and stood in front of me, barring the way. The man hesitated a moment, turned and disappeared. We never saw him again."

The actress said she had no explanation for the mysterious chain of incidents.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The Department of Agriculture is saying no more than a hint about it, but the United States still have to import about next year. Reason is the black rust damage to spring wheat. It will reduce the crop far more than expected.

Next Friday at 3 o'clock, the official wheat estimate will be made. It will show the official estimate of July 1 to have been out of line by about 140 million bushels.

Most of this loss is in the spring wheat states of North Dakota and Minnesota, where first early rains brought green growth to the young wheat and high hope to the farmers.

After what happened last year, a bumper crop was hoped for and expected.

Now the black rust spore is killing off as much as 50 per cent of the crop on some farms.

Result will be a harvest of about 500 million bushels, far below demand requirements. Farmers in Kansas and Nebraska will profit for the shortage is already booming the price.

Last year the drought was in full blast in May, and Congress appropriated relief money June 19. No money will come from the Federal till this year, partly because the Government is not on the spot as it was before.

It has an "out" this time. It is not responsible for crop reduction. Spring wheat farmers were allowed to sow 100 per cent of their land. They will have to feed their rusted stubble to the stock and try again next year.

There was a day when Broadway's wise-cracking Eddie Dowling was a hit native about holding companies. To him they did not look any more dangerous than a piece of stage property in his theater.

In fact, during the election, when he was collecting campaign funds for Roosevelt, Eddie cut a contradiction for $65,000 from the Flood Electric utility interests, one of the biggest holding companies in the country.

Eddie took the check back to headquarters with great pride and was grief-stricken when Roosevelt told him he could not accept it.

"It's the biggest single contribution of the campaign," mourned Eddie.

Two years and more passed. Eddie Dowling was invited to speak at a farewell dinner given to Charles F. Norris, vice-president of the Carle electric utility company. He was supposed to be a humorist.

But the preceding speakers attacked their time to bitter attacks on Roosevelt. And when Dowling's time came, he launched an equally bitter attack against his utility company hosts.

"Theater! Theater!" he stormed. "That ended the evening. But it did not end Dowling's relations with holding companies. He and his brother ran a coal company which supplied fuel to power plants in and around New York. Shortly after the dinner, Eddie found his coal orders cancelled."

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, August 6.—What happens to a man on the sixtieth floor of a New York skyscraper when the elevators break down?

Even if you're in good athletic condition the problem of getting down from the top of the Empire State building or the RCA building in Radio City without benefit of cables is one that would make the strongest heart quail. The Merchants' Association has been worrying about this so much, in fact, that the other day they decided to make a test. Three able-bodied young men were selected to run downstairs in the Woolworth building, going at break but not top speed.

The three men came down in from six minutes to eight minutes and twenty-five seconds. The three stout fellows were decidedly dizzy from their quick descent. They became so much in the last few floors that they showed up to a walk and they wobbled crazily when they reached the bottom.

It was only a test, but a couple of weeks ago, when fire broke out on the forty-eighth floor of the General Electric building on Lexington avenue and 50th street, the tenants on the upper floors escaped being marooned only by a few minutes. Now people in town are beginning to be a little jittery about the whole business.

Obviously, the solution is to give every visitor to a New York skyscraper a parachute as he enters the building.

DANGEROUS LANDINGS

LOIS BULL AUTHOR OF "CAPTIVE GODDESS"

When Linda Marshall, famous American girl flier on a round-the-world solo flight, disappears over the Pacific Tommy Drew, noted American aviator and adventurer who is in love with her, receives the news in London and determines to fly out to the East to search for her. He has secret knowledge that her disappearance was deliberately planned and hopes for a code message from her over a special high-powered radio receiving set in his rooms. He is listening to the message on a dictaphone record that has been attached to the receiving set in his absence.

When Angus Kirkbrae, Vice Marshal of the Royal Air Force, walks in on him, when Kirkbrae hints that he knows what's behind Linda's disappearance and offers to keep the dictaphone record for Tommy, the latter drops it on the floor, smashing it.

CHAPTER IV

TOMMY was apparently agast at what had happened—that through his clumsiness, the important dictaphone record had been destroyed. He flushed as he turned toward Kirkbrae.

But the latter merely smiled. "An amused look in his eyes," Tommy said. "I don't blame you for not trusting me. I've given you no reason to it's what I should have done in the same circumstances—smashed it rather than hand it over to a meddling old man, you've seen only half a dozen times in your life."

"Oh but you're quite mistaken sir! Just very clumsy of me. Very clever of you! Because you see, I was throwing a our bluff trying to find out how much you know without giving myself away."

"You should be in the Foreign Office, sir, instead of in the Air Force."

"AYE, but there's never a Scot yet could outbait an American. So I'll put it to you straight, I was the chap who put Copernicus Marshall ashore at Crab Island. Yes, that was what we called it for lack of a better name, since it was directly on the Tropic of Cancer and the astrological sign of that being—"

"Linda's uncle. A scoundrel who went to war with Dewey and never came back. Supposed according to the official records to have been lost in some remote spot just after the Spanish-American War. Yes, all the ends are on the table now. You're the man who put Coppy Marshall on Crab Island and I'm the one that's looking to marry Linda as soon as we've cleared up this mess she's in because of that uncle!"

"That's what I meant earlier this evening," Kirkbrae broke in. "Poor brave little fool! That's why the story of her being kidnapped Tommy remained silent."

"So you still are not ready to take me completely into your confidence? Well—no matter."

"It isn't that, sir—Tommy floundered.

"Never mind, lad." Tommy said no more as he detached the other cylinder from the receiving set and attached it to the dictaphone machine. Together the two men listened to it, but no other message had been recorded.

A half hour later they separated—Tommy to dash for Croydon and Paris; Kirkbrae, to his office in his car.

IT WASN'T until the next day in Paris that Tommy learned, through a news bulletin, that Kirkbrae, after paring with him the night before, had met with an accident when another car crashed into his. Kirkbrae the bulletin said, was suffering from abrasions and a slight concussion, but was not seriously injured. On regaining consciousness, he had been able to elve few accurate details of the accident. He did remember just before the two cars crashed seeing a figure leap from the door of the other car, roll over and over like a ball, then jump to his feet and run away. "Like an acrobat taking tumbles," Kirkbrae was quoted as saying. "No, he would not tell him, but he would let him listen to the other cylinder and if there should be another code message, he would easily be able to tell whether Kirkbrae knew Linda's code. He would watch his face closely."

Kirkbrae smiled broadly as Tommy remained silent.

"So you still are not ready to take me completely into your confidence? Well—no matter."

BRITISH LODGE IN PLANS FOR MANY EVENTS

Griffstone Lodge, Sons of St. George met last evening at Memorial hall to hear the report of the grand lodge delegates, Joseph Baker and Thomas C. Pimm, who have just returned from Riverside.

John Topham of Los Angeles, was elected grand president for the next year and Oakland was selected for the meeting place of the next grand lodge convention in 1936.

The annual picnic of the San Francisco bay lodges will take place next Sunday at Neptune Beach, where a large turnout is expected. Herbert Caswell is chairman of the local committee, and Archie McKiever musical director.

It was announced that on August 25, at the Neptune stadium, Alameda, that a team of the East Bay Soccer League will play a team from H. M. S. Danae, which will be in port for a visit at that time. On the last visit of this British man-of-war in 1935, their soccer team lost their only game here, and so will be out to avenge that defeat.

After the business meeting, Trefalgar Lodge, San Mateo, played the local bowling team two games. The last game in this tournament will be played at Turnaby Lodge, San Francisco on September 13.

The new entertainment committee is as follows: A. McKiever, chairman; Allan Parr, Jos. Baker, W. Fews, C. Cayall, Thos. Glas-

Charges are Moderate

It is well to remember that a beautiful mortuary does not mean high prices, as this firm proves. With all the refinements and comforts to be found here, charges are never higher than the smallest incomes can easily afford. By including everything in one plainly marked price, we have made it possible for every family to make an appropriate selection without financial hardship.

Baby With "Moist Eczema" Is Pitiful Sight as Rash Increases

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

MANY different conditions occur in children due to undigested food. Some have an attack of colic, some diarrhea, some hives, others give all the appearance of an acute cold in the head, but in eczema the child reacts to his food by the development of a rash. This rash usually comes suddenly and may disappear as suddenly as it came. This eruption occurs most frequently on the hands and face, because these parts are more exposed and may already be irritated.

DR. CHRISMAN

It first appears in little patches which spread and may cover the entire body. Eczema breaks out, heals up, and then breaks out again. It comes and goes. We bathe it with some lotion or ointment and it goes away and we think we have conquered it, then it appears again. The irritation becomes weaker or the resistance becomes greater and finally the eczema disappears; then more irritation and more eczema.

It is this tendency to recur, as well as the great variety of things that may cause it that makes eczema so difficult to treat, and causes one person to be very enthusiastic about some preparation curing the trouble and another to feel that there is no cure.

I have tried to explain how these poisonous food substances in the blood stimulate the nerves that supply the skin, so that they dilate the skin cells. A red blood appearance indicates the blood vessels are overactive.

Skin Is Discolored

The skin becomes discolored and slightly swollen. The little blisters open, and discharge their contents onto the surface of the skin. This dries and forms a crust and an attack of eczema is started. All due to some undigested food elements.

The skin reacts in different ways to the different food poisoning and causes different demonstrations. There are many forms of eczema, but they come under two distinct heads—dry eczema and moist eczema.

The name "dry eczema" is applied to those cases in which the reddish rash appears, but there is no blistering. The skin is dry, there is no discharge and no crusting, but the skin remains dry and scaly. This occurs more frequently in older children.

It is usually seen in reddish patches covered with dry or oily scales. It does not itch and burn so much as does the moist eczema and is more readily overcome. In a severe case the skin is red, sore, and burning. The irritation tends to perforate the deeper layers of skin. The mild cases often resemble a severe chapping from wind and water.

The moist eczema, frequently called "weeping eczema," forms blisters, discharges a fluid which hardens into a crust. It continues to blister and weep and crust and spread and itch. Dr. G. H. Fox of New York, in his book "Diseases of the Skin in Infancy and Childhood" describes the progress of the rash in these terms: "Redness, moisture, infiltration of the skin, scaling, crusting, itching, and a tendency to form patches with ill-defined borders." This is a plain statement of a most distressing process.

A Pitiful Sight

The baby with a red, swollen, crusty face digs and scratches till the blood comes. If his hands are bowed down, he rubs his head back and forth on the pillow till the blood comes and this dried blood is added to the original yellowish mass. It all becomes an ugly, unsightly mess, pitiful to behold.

Due to scratching and rubbing, bacteria enter the raw surface and we have that poisoning and swelling added to the already miserable condition. We apply some healing ointment or lotion to allay the itching and clean the eczematous surface. The condition gets better, both from the effects of the applications and the improvement in the sensitiveness to the food poisoning.

Or maybe to the fact that he refuses food when he is suffering so much misery. At this time the scales and scales peel off and the redness and itching disappear. Our hopes are raised and we feel that we have conquered the trouble, only to be suddenly faced by a reappearance of the eruption in all its severity.

It is seldom that a local application will permanently cure the trouble unless the internal causes are removed. The local applications clean up and allay the itching, but do not prevent recurrence. Continued tomorrow.

Romberg Businesslike Song Writer

By TALBOT LAKE

LEGIONS of people have tried to write songs, popular and otherwise, but we all know that the really successful song writers can be counted on the fingers of both hands. What makes a successful song writer? What kind of a thing is he, anyway? There is no answer—it just happens.

Take the case of Sigmund Romberg, who rose from honky-tonk to penthouse on the strength of his knock—for that is what it is—to write catchy music. Mr. Romberg just is the popular type for music; he is massive and businesslike, with no soul-searing flights of fancy to cloud his view of forthcoming royalties. The fact is that back in Austria he was trained as a civil engineer, and that's exactly how he writes music.

He arrived in New York from Vienna in 1909, broke and all but disillusioned. He found a livelihood pounding a piano in a basement restaurant, Harry Carroll, on more or less of a slumming trip, saw him work and asked why he didn't compose music.

Romberg replied: "I can turn out better stuff than this (pointing to the music of the day on the piano rack) at a minute's notice. Carroll put him in touch with Jake Shubert, who set him to work on the Winter Garden show, "Whirl of the World." His music "sounded" immediately and his career literally exploded wide open. Broadway was his, and he took full advantage of it.

Like most men who work with incredible speed, his movements are slow and deliberate. After the first success there came a long line of productions for which he did the music. Remember some of them? "The Student Prince," "Blossom Time," "The New Moon," "Desert Song" were probably the most popular of his works, but he did many others of varying return.

The business side to Romberg remained uppermost, and does to this day.

Men Always Appreciate a Tidy Upkeep

By JACQUELINE HUNT

WOMEN who wish to keep their appearance above criticism from the men with whom they come in contact should give careful attention to their hair, hands and personal grooming.

Men are more observant than you would think, and hair that is untidy or that has been obviously dyed is one of their pet hates. Sometimes for personal or professional reasons a woman feels it is necessary to dye or bleach her hair. Gray hair is deceiving. One instinctively associates it with age, although many women start to become gray in their early twenties.

Dye your hair if you feel you must, but unless you can afford the time and money to do a good job of it, it is better to leave it to its own natural coloring. A discolored line where the new hair has grown in against dyed or bleached hair will detract from an otherwise stunning appearance.

MISS HUNT

Hair that grows quickly requires frequent touch-ups. Sometimes every three weeks. Hair that grows slowly can be kept in good condition with a retouch every six weeks or two months.

If your hair has been dyed to conceal gray hairs, then the retouch should be given by a beauty operator with the same kind of dye that was first used.

If bleaching has changed the natural color of your locks, then you can, by taking your time, do your own retouching job. Remember that the bleach must be kept on the new growth only, and for this reason it is advisable to work with a small section of hair at a time.

If your hair has been artificially colored you should have a weekly hot oil shampoo. During the summer when you tend to perspire a lot, it is wise to give your hair cleanings between shampoos with a good hair tonic. Perspiration odor from the hair is something that you should avoid.

You should also avoid straggly hairs around your neckline. If you cannot keep them curled in to the rest of your coiffure, have them clipped and replaced every two or three weeks. Spray a small amount of hair lotion or brilliantine over your waves and curls to keep them in place during the day or evening.

Most women take fairly good care of their hands these days and most of them use the shining lacquer polishes. They come in so many shades, many of them conservative, that you shouldn't have trouble finding one that the man you are most anxious to please approves of.

Most men dislike the bloused fingers for everyday wear, but most of them admit that these colors can be quite stunning when worn at evening for costume accent.

Personal cleanliness is something that we shouldn't have to mention, but it is easy to slip up at times. The use of an antiperspirant and deodorizing agent should be as much of a habit as your daily bath. Use a mouthwash, too, see that your undergarments are kept fresh.

QUESTION: "I have good looking hands and I always try to keep them soft and attractive. With my nails neatly manicured, I have one flaw, however, my knuckles are more prominent than they should be. Is there anything I can do about this?"—So O.

ANSWER: Have the tablecloth laundered beforehand. It will hardly seem like a gift if it arrives in a soiled and wrinkled condition. Launder carefully and wrap it daintily. In this way he will convey that you gave it thought and time, a flattering tribute to the recipient of a gift.

QUESTION: "I have a skin that is free from pimples and I have a few freckles. But I have moles on my face, neck and arms. Is there any cream or skin tonic that will prevent these?"—What causes them?—Kay.

There is no cream or lotion that will remove or prevent the development of moles. They are probably caused by some impurity or foreign body near the surface of the skin. Doctors can remove them rather simply by incisions of mild acid or with an electric needle, but you should not attempt to treat them at home, as there is danger of infection. You can conceal the flat moles that look somewhat like overgrown freckles by using a tinted foundation cream before you powder.

Straight Silhouette Back, According to Paris Report

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Why not read over my shoulder the letter which has just arrived with its picture of Paris at one of its most fashionable moments. It is a description of a gala held the night of the Grand Prix, the committee of which was headed by Madame Jacques Balsan, nee Consuelo Vanderbilt, and once the Duchess of Marlborough; and a large section of the French society crowded the large gardens of the Inter-Allied Club for the occasion.

As, at other recent evening galas, there was choice of many silhouettes, with romantic full skirted types predominant, but some of the newest looking were paradoxically those which returned to the slender lines of several seasons ago, and were done in handsome crepes or crepe satins. These were usually high at front of the décolleté and low at back.

Madame Balsan herself looked like an 18th Century portrait; her fine features and delicate coloring, and her hair powdered with gray, were set off by a full skirted gown of ivory white falling with the top of the décolleté faced with turquoise velvet. There were diamonds embroidery on the front of the bodice, and the full sleeves were held by bracelets of brilliant above the elbow.

The evening was also by way of being a Schiaparelli triumph. Her long capes of crinkly taffeta were worn in rose or green by Lady Maudslayi, Mrs. Fellows, Comtesse Gaby de Robilant and others. Her long wrap of metal striped silk was also noted. In addition, the Comtesse Colliere Mansfield and one or two other women wore one of her dresses of "Indian gauze," metal striped, and cut with divided skirt like that of a Bengali dancer.

This should give you a faint idea of the shadow that looks the newer. That is something to bear in mind.

QUESTION: "Recently I bought a beautiful hand embroidered tablecloth at a bargain. A friend has just announced her engagement and I should like to send it to her as a gift for her 'honeymoon.' As the tablecloth is somewhat soiled from handling while being embroidered, I am wondering whether it may be sent along in its present state."—K. G. D.

ANSWER: Have the tablecloth laundered beforehand. It will hardly seem like a gift if it arrives in a soiled and wrinkled condition. Launder carefully and wrap it daintily. In this way he will convey that you gave it thought and time, a flattering tribute to the recipient of a gift.

QUESTION: "Do people of good taste practice cutting in at dances?"—Joan D.

ANSWER: Polite society accepts the custom when it is not abused.

QUESTION: "When a girl tells a young man she does not want to dance this dance, is it polite for her to change her mind and accept the next partner who asks her?"—F. D.

ANSWER: No; she should wait the first man's feelings by sitting out that whole dance.

QUESTION: "What is a sort of—H. C."

ANSWER: A dish of fish and fruit, though many are with beaten egg, and fixed in that condition by baking.

WHEN there are other engaging tasks at hand you do not want to spend too much time about your stove and kitchen. Yet appetites recognize neither interesting jobs nor vacations. They may be temperamental at times, still they are clamoring for attention as soon as meal time comes around.

Fortunately, August is a lavish month. She brings fruit, eggs, berries and vegetables that are easy to convert into appealing meals—meals that are quick and easy to prepare. Enjoy good food, but enjoy this last lazy month of summer, too. Today's menus will show you how easy it is.

MODERN WOMEN

She's Afraid Husband Is Falling for a Mutual Friend, But How?

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

A WOMAN'S husband should be sufficiently her friend to bear with her when she is uneasy in mind—even about him. Instead of hugging her hurts, fancies or otherwise, to her bosom, a wise wife makes a clean breast of them to her husband. If he's the sort worth having he is going to understand. Anyway, he has a right to know that she is doubting him—if she is—and why.

My dear Mrs. Martin: I am very unhappy about a situation which I feel is developing. My husband who has been devoted to me for the six years of our marriage is showing symptoms of interest in another woman—one who professes to be my friend. He has never acted as he now acts with her, and as it flatters her and her husband, I am sure she is not a bad person. I admit that I am worried, for she is an attractive girl much younger than my husband and me. We see each other every day and have good times, but they are always paired off together and seem to have a great deal to say which is more or less Greek to the rest of us. I rather suspect them of meeting on the outside, but I may be wrong. Anyhow, he used to talk about her in any sort of conversation about her. He seems to avoid any mention of what she is doing. I am not a clever woman and don't know how to handle this painful situation. Please advise, Joan.

Are you quite sure that you are not building up a case, and that it really has any foundation in fact? I must be that you are right—I don't deny that possibility, but you must not jump at conclusions.

"N-no," Dad looked up at last. "Frankly, I haven't been listening for noise. If I listen—and I'm listening now—I hear Edwin and Bobby wrestling, and groaning and squealing. The baby thumping around dragging a broken wagon. Margaret singing. Does she have to sing so loud?"

Another dropped into an easy chair. "I wish I had your nerves." Then, "Of course, Margaret has to make as much noise as she can. She's just quarreled with her sister, and is pretending that she doesn't care."

"And I suppose she is the one who is at fault, too?" "Natural," mother answered good-naturedly. Then, "You can't imagine what I have to put up with. It is a wonder that I have any nerves left at all," she added with self-pity.

"The noise is pretty bad, but I venture that it seems worse to you than it is. Why? Because you believe that noise is naughty. Consequently, it annoys you. And the more upset you get, the more magnified the noise gets. I look upon such noise as a necessary evil. I don't care for it particularly, but I don't let it 'get' me either. If the children were in trouble, I'd know it at once from the noise they make. That would be another matter. But this noise denotes active living, and really is harmless."

Roll in lemon juice then in the sugar mixture. Place each half on a square of rich pie crust, large enough to cover it. Roll and pinch the crust together so it completely encloses the banana. Bake in a hot oven about half an hour or until brown. Serve warm with hard sauce or with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

A Good Idea, But—

It would be splendid if husbands and wives could be on such a friendly footing that they could, dispassionately, talk on the possibilities of such situation, but it's expecting a good deal to think that such a talk could come off without considerable display of spleen by one or the other.

Each case, really meaning even temperament, requires a different treatment. Perhaps cleverness is preferable to frankness in such a situation, but that would be only because of the peculiar temperament of the individual.

Try to reverse the situation and figure how you would be best handled if your husband had any cause for thinking you were becoming unduly interested in the man or the other. Suppose he were to come to you and say something like this: "Seems to me, old girl, that you are getting sort of steamed up over So-and-So—or am I all wrong?"

How would it make you feel, both if he were right and if he were wrong? In either case your immediate reaction would be to deny it. But on reflection isn't it possible that you might admit to yourself that John was right, and since it was all in spirit of good clean fun you guess it was about time to call a halt and be your age? It's possible your husband has not realized he was overplaying his hand and that at working normal from you he might come to his senses before there were any real damage done.

Stricken Savant Reported Same

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—UP—No change is evident in the condition of Dr. E. H. Hasseltine, plague expert of the United States Public Health Service who apparently is suffering from "parrot fever," physicians at Marine Hospital said tonight.

Dr. Hasseltine has been able to maintain the slightly improved condition evident yesterday upon the injection of a special serum rushed here by airplane from Washington, hospital authorities reported, but said there had been no further decline in the patient's temperature.

Physicians are not yet certain that Dr. Hasseltine is suffering from Pottacoccus, or "parrot fever," although he exhibits all the known symptoms. He had an attack four years ago. Records show no instance of a recurrence in an individual who once has had the disease.

School Leader To Fight Ouster

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—UP—Otto F. Aken, retiring county superintendent of schools, pulled himself out of an army cot this morning, jerked a toothbrush out of his pocket and vowed he'd stay in his office all Summer if necessary.

Aken's worries started yesterday when Noble J. Puffer, newly elected superintendent, tried by main force to get himself inducted into office and failed after a fight. Aken charges Puffer is unqualified because he has had insufficient education and that during his seven years as assistant superintendent he falsified records.

This morning it looked like a long wait, for final adjudication is scheduled for August 19—two weeks away.

Mrs. James Hogan separated, because Mrs. Hogan "went Hollywood." She sought and found employment in the film colony. They made up. He brought her home recently. Today he shot and killed her and committed suicide.

Marchers then attacked the town's sub-prefecture, tearing down the tri-color of France and hoisting the Red flag.

RED EMBLEM

The Communist emblem was torn down by Jacques Henry, sub-prefect, after the mob had been scattered—battered by police batons.

Henry was beaten severely and was sent to the hospital after police rescued him from the throng. Several soldiers were wounded in clashes in the Rue Siam and in two minor disorders which broke out near the maritime barracks.

Police Commissioner Chabrol was wounded.

WORKERS WALKED OUT

Renewed wage out demonstrations began in early morning when maritime arsenal workers walked out. Serious clashes with the police followed immediately. Maritime authorities ordered the arsenal closed until restoration of order.

Two hundred workers taking on construction of the new cruiser Dunkerque put down their tools suddenly and joined in demonstrations from neighboring shops. Workers in another section of the town attempted to join the manifestations but police and mobile guards intervened.

MANY INJURED

Many were injured when demonstrators began hurling rocks, bricks and other missiles. Several suffered fractured skulls. Republican guards were summoned from Mantes. Workers tried to block passage of their trucks, resulting in other clashes for which the workers had armed themselves with bottles and stones.

Fighting continued unabated in late afternoon. Heavy forces of police, troops and mobile guards succeeded in clearing the section near the arsenal barracks after hand-to-hand fighting.

Subsequently, rioting was renewed in the Rue de Siam, Brest's main street.

Fish Meal Plants Will Be Operated By Sept. 15th

Two substantial new industries, the 10,000 square feet of space and will be operating here by the middle of next month, according to a statement yesterday through P. M. Canford, president of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce. Both the fish plants, situated close to each other at Point San Pablo, but operating under separate management and designed to produce different products.

The East Bay Fisheries, Inc., will occupy one of the new buildings. The business is owned by three executives of the P. & B. Booth company and the plant will produce fish meal and fish oil. The new building is under way. Opening of both will be about September 15, it is estimated. Both have secured the necessary permits to take fish from the California Fish and Game Commission.

The other is the Edible Fish Meal and Oils, Inc., with L. M. Lucas as the chief executive officer, and the ownership and control vested in interests in Vancouver, B. C. This plant also will be equipped with new, high-speed machinery for the latest and most economical production of the products.

Both buildings are virtually completed and installation of equipment is under way. Opening of both will be about September 15, it is estimated. Both have secured the necessary permits to take fish from the California Fish and Game Commission.

The new plants were brought to Richmond through the financial patronage of the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced. They will have substantial payrolls and will be important additions to the economic life of the community.

Local workmen were employed and local materials used in construction. The investment for buildings and machinery will be in excess of $50,000.

WASHINGTON'S SALES TAX IS HELD AS LEGAL

OLYMPIA, Wash., Aug. 6.—UP—The State Supreme Court today upheld constitutionality of Washington's two per cent retail sales tax and the entire program of token payments.

The court affirmed a Thurston County Superior Court dismissal of an action brought by John D. Morrow, Seattle cafe operator, against the State Tax Commission. Morrow's contention was that the sales tax was discriminatory, a property tax and hence illegal under the 40-mill limitation law, and that issuance of tokens by the State constituted illegal coinage of money.

The Supreme Court did not uphold any of the contentions. The opinion was unanimous, except for the vote of Chief Justice W. J. Millard, who is ill.

Douglas Tilden, Famed Sculptor Is Found Dead

FREELEY, Aug. 6.—UP—Douglas Tilden, 74, one of California's most noted sculptors, was found dead in his studio today, his body slumped at the base of his last work.

A friend, Leandro Maldonado, found his body when he came to visit the aged artist.

Tilden apparently died two days ago from a heart attack.

Internationally known, Tilden overcame an early handicap when he graduated from the California School for the Deaf, then went on to study at the University of California and in New York and Paris.

San Francisco contains many public monuments created by Tilden's artistry. Others are in Paris, New York and other cities.

His later years were filled with struggle against poverty. In 1930, he applied for a state pension, stating that he was in "actual want." Immediate aid was given him, and he returned to work in his small studio here.

He was divorced in 1926. Two children, Gladys and Willoughby Lee now survive him.
